

hi! my name is jim. this is my second fanzine based entirely within electric zine maker.

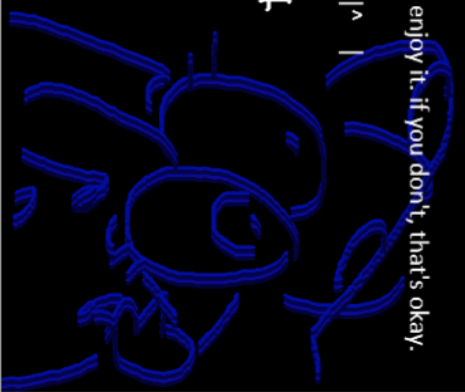

"technical difficulties" is a short <24hr. pizzano fanzine mostly revolving around mental illness. it probably takes itself a bit too seriously, and you're allowed to think this.

the title is a bit double-sided, as i'm cobbling this together on a loaner laptop with a mouse.

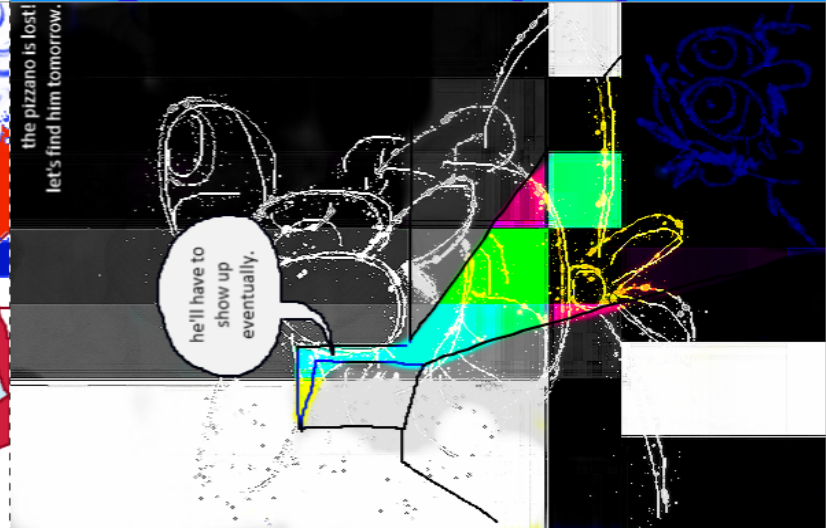

i hope you enjoy it. if you don't, that's okay.

YAH-HAH! | ^

PIZZANO IS MISSING! (LET'S FIND HIM!) ->

the pizzano is lost! let's find him tomorrow.

just look at any nearby screen!

look harder

is he there?

can you tell? are you sure?

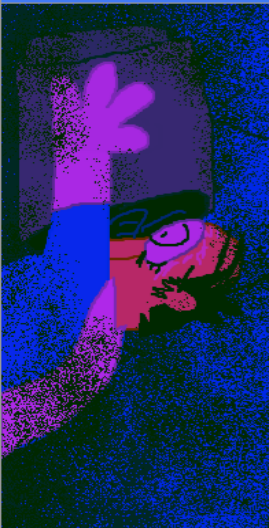

screens display an image. you can stare at it to your heart's content.

when the light is gone, however screens are a reflective surface.

as long as you are staring at the image you do not see the reflection.

you do not see yourself.

what if the TV was on all the time? and everyone would love it and you could just be the image, and not the reflection? you can look in any screen and see yourself. If smiling, wide eyed, screaming, every angle open for everyone to see in the eyes. he might be upset that he is dying, and to be replaced. in response, shatter the glass with extreme prejudice
